

Heyo! I'm not going to pretend to know what you're going through or how you're feeling because frankly, I don't. But I hope that whatever mood you're in, you can still find happiness, even in the little things! Like good blankets, kind visitors, or that beautiful Texas weather. The sunsets as of late have been really orange for some reason, but I think it's prettier that way. Anyways, sending kisses! But if you don't want them (completely understandable), just snap twice and I promise they'll leave. Ciao!